For a long time, Tina* struggled to find affordable housing in the community. She and her three children were impacted by COVID-19, and she worried that her small family would soon be out on the streets. They were accepted into Family Promise of Ogden's program, where Tina was able to regain her confidence in providing for her family. Tina got a better job and applied for public assistance. Her biggest relief came when she was able to get approved for a housing voucher that allowed her to find the apartment of her dreams. She and her children now have plenty of space, and they are happy, stable, and thriving.
